As I sit here finishing this weeks issue, putting the final touches in

The White House has been invaded! What in the world is going on? I can not imagine a more disrespectful act. I am pretty sure some of the people of the United States of America have lost the little bit they had been hanging on to. It is not my job to judge, I just don't understand!

Less than 12 hours ago I was happy. I thought I had a clear mind, and I was ready to take on the work at hand for the day. I am going to try my hardest to focus on that.

For the first time since March 2020, I had my hair professionally done. Not a huge deal to most, but something that had been really bringing my mental down. The dreaded 40 brought me to the realization that the fucking future is here. You know, you have kids and always say...

"I will lose some weight when I can stop cooking these ridiculous meals for my kids", or "When my kids are older I will have more time to work out". How about, "One of these days I will learn to like healthier food. Right now though Imma enjoy this burger!" It just happened that when the world started falling apart, I chose to pull my shit together.

I have been eating much better, moving around a bit more, and just taking better general care of my inner and outer self. I learned a craft and lost some 15 year old "baby weight", lmao. By the way, You know what really sucks? Losing weight in a pandemic! This shit means no trying on clothes. Trust me too, when they say not to, don't try them. I had a swat team of Ross employees on me in less than 90 seconds after slipping on some jeans to see what size I now wear. I attempted to explain and was very quickly reminded that not one of them gave a fuck! Damn it I deserve to squeeze into a new pair of jeans after giving up on non stretchy pants 10 or so years ago. Anyways, we made it out safe and now I have new hair and new jeans!!!

I was asked a couple days ago if I had made any resolutions. My answer was no. There was not a second thought in my mind when I said "2020 brought me too much happiness to want to make any resolutions". I want to keep moving in a positive direction and let life take me where it will. Making a resolution to me just seems like wanting more than what I have. I am the only person that can make that happen though... So, I choose to do just that. I am not going to make a resolution per se, I am however going to make a promise to myself. I promise to keep working towards happiness. I promise to be respectful of myself and others, and I promise to release more of the negativity in my life. I hope you will all join me. Don't make one of those basic resolutions. make a promise to take care of yourself!

We are not out of the woods yet, and would love to have some additional help so we can bring this magazine back to printed life! If you are able to donate, here's the link. If you would like to support by purchasing ad space in the weekly online magazine, see page \(10\)

WELCOME TO 2021!

Vulgar.Vanity

First prediction that we all foresee and have been promised from our government officials is a steadily available vaccine for the coronavirus.

This has been in the works for months, and in December we were finally shown promise of a vaccine that would be made available to all citizens. After it was distributed to essential worker it was time for distribution of the general public.

Predictions indicate that based on the number of people who actually receive the vaccine and continue to follow recommended guidelines, the prediction is that we'll be allowed to completely abandon quarantine and reopen the country for good by mid-May of 2021.

QUARANTINE FREE BY MAY

The dreaded return of the early 2000's fashion trends. You read that right, Gen Z and younger millennials are reintroducing the fashion trends from the early 2000s.

Low rise jeans are replacing the skinny jean trend, crop tops have completely taken over the feminine section of stores, even the harsh dirty blonde highlights, and thin eyebrows are coming back. If you're the type to follow fashion trends, then you should make a quick trip to your storage unit or the boxes you abandoned at your parents' house. Currently Gen Z is taking to TikTok to show off the "vintage" items they thrifted and showing off their new grunge aesthetic.

As we enter the new era of fashion and trending aesthetics we begin to see women purchasing older Juicy Couture track suits. Men are returning to the polo under their sweaters. Tiny metal hoop belts that go across the stomach, and hooped earrings.

Fashion trends predict the return of the 2000s.

FASHION: TRENDING 2000'S

The last decade has been a time of expansion for the makeup community. It has been a time where evening makeup and runway looks became accessible to average person after makeup artists took their artistry to YouTube, go to love the internet. Skin care and natural makeup became a trend during quarantine when dressing up was no longer the same luxury as before since we were unable to go out and show ourselves off.

During quarantine everyone seeking to eliminate the acne brought on by their face masks took to the internet to introduce their skin care secrets for glowing luminous skin; thus setting the new trend for minimal makeup and refreshed looking skin.

Prediction for 2021 is that we expect for all makeup wearers to tone down their usual heavy routine and trade it in for a lighter and more natural look.

BITCOIN & DOGECOIN

2020 we experienced a great recession, but in 2021 it is predicted that we'll witness a surge in virtual financial growth and near the close of the printed currency. Investors, the financially literate, and the wealthy are all aware of the potential held by both Bitcoin & Dogecoin.

In the year of 2021 the prediction is that Dogecoin will rise to $1 by the end of the year.

Bitcoin itself is on the rise and is expected to become a major form of currency and have a massive growth expansion as well as substantial price increase.

Be a smart investor!

TRAVEL

Predicting that quarantine will be lifted by mid-May of 2021, we can also predict that we'll be allowed to travel soon after!

We had restrictions in place for good reason, but my oh my, aren't we all excited to spend hours at the airport and venture out far away from the homes we've been stuck in for a year.

Travel boomed during the holidays despite the pandemic, and it is predicted that flight prices will increase in June and should be booming that same month. Travel is expected to boom once the restrictions have been lifted.
